Adm. Vern Clark, Chief of Naval Operations, congratulates Rear Adm. Jacob Shuford after assuming command of the Naval War College from Rear Adm. Ronald Route, center, during change of command ceremonies held Aug. 12.

Naval War College welcomes new president

By LT. DAVID AUSIELLO
NWC Deputy Public Affairs

Newport, R.I., — The Naval War College said goodbye to Rear Adm. Ronald A. Route and welcomed Rear Adm. Jacob L. Shuford in a change of command ceremony on Aug. 12. Chief of Naval Operations, Adm. Vern Clark, who presided over the ceremony, praised the efforts of Route and said “the Naval War College is at the heart of the growth and development process in our Navy.”

Route, who has been selected for the rank of vice admiral and will assume his next assignment as Inspector General in Washington, D.C., spoke about the Naval War College’s influence on the Fleet.

“The greatest contribution will come from the improved leadership abilities of our graduates — to lead change and to make key decisions in times of stress — and to be more effective in helping their superiors do the same.”

Shuford comes to Newport from Everett, Washington where he has served as Commander, Abraham Lincoln Carrier Strike Group since August 2003. Shuford spoke about the impact his Naval War College experience has had on his career and his vision for the future.

“I have probably not had a single professional notion that was not influenced or informed by my experience here. The Naval War College is a national treasure...and I expect the full commitment of this faculty and staff to make sure it stays that way. I also expect that we will not rest on our laurels: there is great and important and urgent work to be done.”

Band concert salutes summer

Fireworks return to Naval Station (NAVSTA) Newport on Sept. 3, as Navy Band Northeast (NBNB) stages a “Salute to Summer” Concert on the lawn below the Naval War College.

Music and concession sales at Dewey Field will begin at 5 p.m. Rain date is Sept. 4.

Music will be by a variety of NBNE components, such as Rhode Island Sound, Island Breeze and Forecast. The main performance will be by the Concert Band in an all-out celebration, including a patriotic salute to America’s veterans.

After 9 p.m., fireworks will be shot from a barge offshore in Narragansett Bay.

The Commanding Officer, Naval Station Newport, invites

all hands and the public to the event on Coasters’ Harbor Island. Guests without military or Department of Defense identification cards should enter through Gate 1. They will be directed to designated parking areas.

Because of security measures, coolers and backpacks will not be allowed. Morale Welfare and Recreation Department (MWR) concession tents will be supplemented by vendors.

Special kids entertainment is scheduled from 6 to 7 p.m. by Radio Disney AM 550.

The event is sponsored, in part, by First Command, Home Depot, GEICO Direct and McLaughlin & Moran, distributors of Anheuser Busch.

MYA spells fun all summer long

By JOY CHRISTMAS
NAVSTA Public Affairs Staff

Whether inside or outside, rain or shine, the campers at the Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR) Department's Military, Youth Activities (MYA) Summer Camp spent their summer having of fun.

The camp, open to children ages 5 to 12 of active duty, reserve military and Department of Defense (DoD) personnel, is housed at the Greene Lane Housing Community Center. Hours of operation are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Monday to Friday. With extended care available from 7 to 9 a.m. and 3 to 5 p.m. Registration is ongoing on a weekly basis, with fees accessed by income on a sliding scale system. Even at the high end of the fee table, MYA Camp is on average 40 percent below the cost of camps in the civilian community.

MYA director, Jeff Dunn, said the camp has been filled to capacity each week, with a waiting list.

"We're having a very busy summer," said Dunn. "Each week there's a different theme."

For example, during "Space Week" one of the activities engaged the kids creating three-dimensional scenes they envisioned would be out in space. The week ended with a field trip to The Laser Gate in Fall River, Mass., a cavernous amusement spot decorated as if in outer space. The kids dress in special suits that illuminate in the dark to display if they are hit with "laser" beams.

"It was one of the best field trips we've been on," said Dunn. I think the counselors had more fun than the kids."

Other Activities included competition in the "mini" Olympics in coordination with the 2004 Summer Olympics, swimming at Pool 307, indoor and outdoor board and court games, arts and crafts, picnic lunches, talent shows, videos and a field trip to Water WizZ in Westerly.

The kids have been great, said Josh Petersen, one of five counselors. Petersen, a five-year counselor, his first with MYA, said he likes the structure of the camp, and that it's not too big, where he's gotten to know each child individually and build relationships with them.

Justin Diploma, 11, returned for his sixth year of camp.

"I like coming here in the summer," said Diploma, taking a break from shooting basketball at Gym 109. "We have a lot of fun here. I like going on all the different field trips."

His first year attending MYA Camp, Rico McCray, also 11, agreed.

"I've made new friends," said McCray, who said he stayed at home last year. "I'd rather be here than cooped up in the house doing nothing. I like my counselors — they're fun, he said. We go on field trips and

Rules apply to military for political support

With the elections coming upon us, many of us may be asked to support a political candidate or party. What are the general rules for a government employee concerning support of a candidate or party?

1. Department of Defense personnel acting in their official capacity may not engage in activities that associate the Department of Defense with any partisan political campaign or election, candidate, cause, or issue.

2. Military personnel are prohibited from wearing military uniforms at political campaign or election events.

3. Military personnel, acting in their official capacity, may not participate in public commentary such as speeches or written submissions for publication concerning campaigns or elections.

4. Civilian DOD personnel are prohibited from using official titles or authority, soliciting or receiving uncompensated volunteer services from a subordinate, and soliciting participation in a political activity of anyone with official matters before DOD.

5. All DoD employees are prohibited from participating in political fundraising, including soliciting or receiving political contributions; allowing the use of official titles in connection with fundraising, and sponsoring a political fundraiser.

6. DOD personnel may not participate in permissible

Call center for physicals

Appointments for school physical exams are now available at Naval Ambulatory Care Center, Newport (NACC-NPT). Authorized beneficiaries should call the Naval Health Care New England Appointment Call Center at 1-888-628-9633.

For families new to the area, it is advised to register their family with NACC, and ensure TRICARE enrollment has been transferred to this region.

Lt. Cmdr. Roger Fazio, pediatrician at NACC, said it is not necessary to obtain the school's physical form. Nearly all schools in Newport, Middletown, and Portsmouth, as well as some of the other districts in Rhode Island, will accept a copy of NACC's school physical form, said Fazio.

"Our form is comprehensive - including height, weight, vital signs, visual acuity, allergies, medicines, past medical history, current medical problems, and the physical itself."

In addition, NACC also has school medication forms for children who need to have medications administered while in school, he said.

To schedule an appointment, call the call center at 1-888-628-9633, 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Call center for appointments

Medical appointments for Naval Ambulatory Care Center (NACC) Newport are now being scheduled through the Naval Health Care New England Appointment Call Center. Open Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., the toll-free number is 1-888-NAVYMED (1-888-628-9633.)

Credit Union expands hours

Navy Federal Credit Union (NFCU) has expanded its hours of operation. The new hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The change will standardize hours Monday through Friday and provide added convenience for our members at the end of the day said NFCU manger Linda Crowley.

Marina offers boat storage

The Naval Station Newport Marina has announced the winter berthing period for private boats is Nov. 1 to April 30. Applications are available at the Marina Office, Building 17. The fee is $15 per foot and is for "storage" purposes only. Live aboards will not be allowed. Patrons must have all applications and proper paperwork in by Nov. 1.

maximum space in the collection bin. PLEASE. If the bin is full, do not leave items on the walk or in front of the Shop. Consider some of the other charitable organizations in the area.

By observing these few rules, you will help volunteers keep the Thrift Shop and the Naval Station neat and clean.

Your generous donations and volunteer hours in the past are appreciated, and have enabled the Thrift Shop to benefit so many in the Newport area.

Thank you.

Salve adds new graduate degree program

Salve Regina University in Newport has expanded its Graduate Studies Program to include a Master of Arts program in Rehabilitation Counseling starting in the fall 2004 semester.

The 48-hour credit program is designed to increase the professional skills of those working in the human services field for delivery of rehabilitative counseling services to clients with disabilities. The holistic-based curriculum emphasizes improved functioning and quality of life and choice, and includes preparation for counseling/case management in such areas as mental illness and substance abuse. Delivery of such services are typically found in places such as state rehabilitation agencies, hospitals, nursing and group homes, human resource offices, employee assistance programs, criminal justice agencies, community agencies, private corporations and private practice.

Areas of study include: cultural and psychosocial aspects of disability; human growth and development; professional identity; counseling and consultation; medical, functional, environmental and psychosocial aspects of disability; social and diversity issues; group work; rehabilitation services and resources; assessment; research; program evaluation and internship field experience.

Anyone with a bachelor's degree in any field of study from a regionally or nationally accredited college or university (or equivalent from an internationally accredited college or university) is eligible to apply.

For those with a master's degree in counseling or associated field, a Certificate of Advanced Graduate Study in Mental Health, with a concentration Rehabilitation Counseling is also offered.

For more information about these programs or any of SRU's graduate programs, call the Graduate Admissions Office at (401) 841-2153, or e-mail graduate_studies@salve.edu

Crime preventers turn back night

By JOY CHRISTMAS
NAVSTA Public Affairs Staff

Naval Station (NAVSTA) Newport Police and fire personnel banned together Aug. 3 to elicit from Navy families to keep their community safe.

NAVSTA Newport's 16th annual observance of the "National Night Out-America's Night Out Against Crime" was held behind the Coddington Cove Preschool in Middletown.

Started in 1983 by the National Association of Town Watch, the observance focuses on eliminating or preventing crime, and creating/maintaining safe family environments.

More than 34 million people in 10,000 communities across the nation participated last year.

Though a modest crowd attended the NAVSTA observance, the children had fun engaging in activities that were both fun and educational.

Master-at-Arms Second Class Laurie Taylor filled and passed out balloons to the kids, while they helped themselves to giant chocolate chip cookies.

"This is a good idea. I wanted to come out and help in any way I could," she said.

Zinto, a 4-year-old German Shepard assigned to Naval Security Force Submarine Base, New London, Conn., enjoyed the attention of being pet by Adriana and Erika Schmidt.

"He's nice," said Adriana, 6.

"We rode by and saw the fire trucks, police cars and balloons and we decided to come back," said her father, Lt. Cmdr. Cliff Schmidt, a resident of Coddington Cove Housing and a student in the College of Naval Command and Staff at the Naval War College.

Fire department personnel demonstrated and explained the different equipment on a ladder, engine and rescue truck.

Police bicycle patrolman Jonathan Pare' demonstrated safe cycling and braking practices on an obstacle course, and K-9 handler Master-at-Arms Second Class John Mitchell demonstrated verbal and sign dog-handling techniques with Zinto. Master-at-Arms Second Class Cale Van Fleet served as a decoy during an attack demonstration.

Masters-at-Arms First Class Josh Amaral and Richard Trantham demonstrated passive compliance techniques that can be used during an apprehension. Master-at-arms James Hull teamed with Amaral to explain tips for safe handling of personal weapons, and Master-at-Arms Second Class Jason Schoonover elicited volunteers to try on the "Drunk Buster Goggles." When worn, the individual experiences the impairment of being intoxicated.

Detective Frank Lema spent the evening fingerprinting a steady stream of eager children at the request of parents.

"I love kids. I'm happy to be here," said Lema, who has been in law enforcement for 38 years. It's a good and necessary cause."

Catherine Buckley, with her two children, Braighan, 6 ½, and Robert, 3 ½, said she attended Crime Night Out at a previous duty station in Oregon.

"I have them fingerprinted every year, said Buckley, whose husband is assigned to the Coast Guard Cutter Willow at Pier Two. "It's good for the kids to see them in uniform (fire and police personnel) in this setting."

Prior to formal remarks, Police Patrol Officers Brian Reed and Marie Duval of the NAVSTA Police Department Honor Guard, paraded the colors.

Crime Night Out coordinator Sgt. Kenneth Blakey, said he was pleased with this year's program.

"I enjoy doing this. The balloons, fingerprinting, face

NAPS roars for Gulls in losing effort

By RICHARD ALEXANDER
Navalog editor

Despite the combined cheering voices of 300 Naval Academy Prep School midshipman and cadet candidates, the Newport Gulls lost the third and deciding game of the New England Collegiate Baseball League championships on Aug. 11 at Cardines Field. Visiting Sanford, Maine, won, 6-4.

NAPS Command Master Chief James Griffaw arranged to bus the new Class of 2005 to the game, which pushed the Gulls' all time, one day attendance record at Cardines to 3,026.

Gulls' spokesman Susan Haeg said the final game smashed the 50,000 attendance mark for the season—double last year.

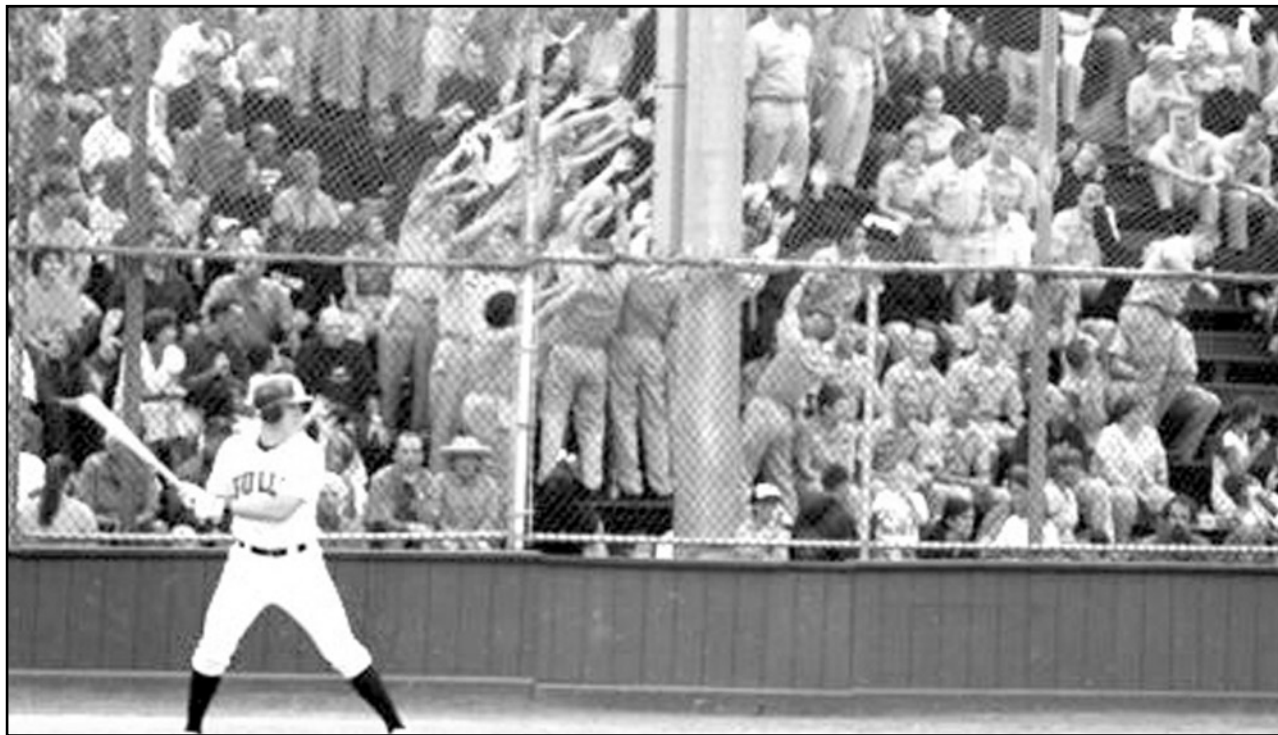

"Not only our whole battalion went to the game, we also had the commanding officer and other staff members," Lt. Josh Johnson, NAPS public affairs officer said. In addition, the acting "Gully" mascot for the night was Griffaw's daughter.

Noise from the crowd drew passersby, tourists and local residents alike to the game, which was literally standing room only inside the historic ballpark. Those unable to get inside lined the outfield fences.

Three busloads of Gulls fans traveled to Sanford, the Northern Division champions, for the second game in the series on Aug. 10. The Maine squad won with an inside-the-park homerun in the bottom of the 10th inning.

The Gulls, Southern Division champions, won the opening game of the series, 4-3, on Aug. 9 at home in front of 2,562 fans.

THE BLEACHERS at Cardines Field are jammed with about 300 midshipman and cadet candidates from the Naval Academy Prep School, who were bused in to cheer for the Newport Gulls in their New England Collegiate Baseball League championship game.

Cheering rose to a deafening roar as the Gulls loaded the bases in the bottom of the ninth inning, with no outs.

The Gulls' cleanup hitter, Drew Locke, stepped to the plate. There were visions of a grand slam, but he bounced a dribbler back to the pitcher who threw for an out at home. The catcher threw to first to negate Locke.

A Gulls' fan in the crowd sighed, "Ouch. That hurt."

The final Gulls batter hit a pop fly to centerfield to end the game.

The Maine team spilled out of the dugout and piled on the pitchers' mound while Gulls' fans watched in silent disbelief.

Capt. Charles Hautau, NAPS commanding officer, left the game optimistic, however. "It was a great experience for all of us and my hope is that the Class of '06 gets an opportunity next year!" he said. "I believe!"

The Newport Gulls won the championship in 2001 and 2002.

Patterson leads Navy in Shields class races

By BETH HOLLAND
Shields Class racing publicist

ON NARRAGANSETT BAY—Bernie Patterson (#163) from the Navy fleet once again dominated with a 13th-place finish during the recent Wednesday night Shields class racing series, Aug. 11.

In spite of looming thunderstorms, the Shields fleet managed to get a start off in a moderating southwesterly and changing current.

Both sides of the course seemed to pay on the up-wind leg, with the top 10 boats all emerging from the corners.

John Allen and Peter Denton (#226) launched off the pin end of the line for an early lead, dominated the left, and rounded the top mark in first place.

The rest of the fleet fought to catch them, but never succeeded.

In the end, Tim Cellers and Walter Bundy (#224) took second place.

Charlie Shoemaker and Coles Mallory made huge gains on the down-wind leg to climb up to third, and Ted Fischer (#145) held on for fourth.

Order of finish for the Navy boats are as follows:

13th, Boat 163, Bernie Patterson, Middletown
25th, Boat 14, Col Chuck Rushworth, Middletown
26th, Boat 164, Cdr. Mark Maglin, Newport
28th, Boat 15, Lobree, Jamestown
29th, Boat 29, Dean Schofield, Holliston, Mass.

Incze leads in Rhodes 19 race

ON NARRAGANSETT BAY—Mike Incze overcame a 400-yard deficit in the final leg to win the Wednesday's Rhodes 19 race on Aug. 3, placing him in a tie for first place for the summer series off Coasters' Harbor Island.

A major wind shift in the middle of the race, from northeast to southwest, was the dominant factor in the final race.

There was a shifting and varying light northeast wind at the start, the boats spread apart during the windward leg, but then converged during the downwind run from "X" to buoy 13, as the wind built again from the northeast, bringing the trailing boats back up to the pack.

With all boats in the middle of the bay, the wind then died completely, leaving all spinners slack.

Chuck Kesson, toward the right side of the course and nearest to Jamestown, was the first to encounter the new breeze that built out of the southwest, and quickly doused his chute and established a commanding lead over the rest of the fleet, as the downwind leg of the racecourse now became an upwind leg.

Marjorie Zambrana and Mike Incze, in the right place at the right time, were next to encounter the new breeze, and established their positions in second and third.

Kesson, with a big lead at the mark rounding and having completely derigged his chute on the takedown, chose not to fly his spinnaker on the downwind run to the finish by the War College.

But as Kesson crossed under the bridge he saw his 400-yard lead begin to dwindle as Incze, now in second, steadily gained on him under a full chute.

Walker Leadership Library. Students and staff will use the library for research, relaxation, and consideration of naval heritage. According to Command Master Chief Ralph Rao, Director of SEA, "MCPON Walker epitomizes everything that our academy represents; he is naval heritage in the flesh." Without his leadership and tenacity, the Navy Senior Enlisted Academy might not exist today. "I had to jump up in the middle of a lot of desks and do a lot of cussing to get that one through," Walker said. "A lot of the senior officers opposed it because they were afraid that with that kind of training, senior enlisted could take officer billets. Not even the CNO was completely sold on the idea. But I finally got it approved." Walker was also responsible for many quality initiatives. He was an avid proponent of off-duty education and carried the banner for traditional Navy customs, standards, and traditions, which began to decline during the late 1970s. After his retirement in 1979, he became president of the Non-Commissioned Officers Association and to this day he continues working for agencies that support the Navy and Navy programs. In 1990, a hall at the Operations Specialist "A" School at Fleet Combat Training Center, Atlantic, Dam Neck, Va., was also dedicated to Walker. The library will also remind Sailors about his contributions to the Navy, but at a much higher level. This high profile educational institution has approximately 320 Navy senior and master chief petty officers, along with numerous sister service senior enlisted students yearly. In addition, it facilitates the Command Master Chief/Chief of the Boat Course and the Navy Senior Enlisted Non-Resident Course. Each of which will benefit from the heritage and tradition represented by this library. "As I look back on my life...throughout my career I was lucky to have great peers, subordinates, and superiors," Walker said. "All of the master chiefs in my past I can only thank God for, and also for all the Sailors in my life. I would not be here today receiving this accolade, which I don't know if I deserve, without them."

painting and demonstrations, we do it all for the kids," said Blakey. "This is an opportunity to build a relationship between the community and the police. They are our eyes and ears to help provide a safe environment for them. This is what it's all about." Citing statistics in the reduction in crime at NAVSTA over the past year. NAVSTA Director of Security, Andrew Fales said, the Crime Night Out concept works. "It's a result of a community effort that we're able to do our jobs so effectively," said Fales, in his remarks to those attending. "We are here to make NAVSTA Newport a safer place to live, work and raise a family." Welcoming the kids to explore the inside of the pumper truck, Firefighter Robert Paul of Engine Company 2, said it's a time well invested. "It's an opportunity to teach the kids the capabilities of the fire department, and become familiar with the equipment, so if there is ever an emergency, they will know we're friends and there to help," he said.

do something fun everyday." "I like when we go to the pool, and do arts and crafts with our counselor," said Allyson Lannan, 9, of Westport, Mass. "I like to come to the gym to do cartwheels and shoot basketball, chimed in older sister Kaitlyn, 11. First year counselor Allyson Splizer said she couldn't have a better job. "This job rocks," said Splizer. "I love kids. It's the best job ever. I get to interact with kids all day." All fun aside, the kids are entrusted to good hands. All counselors have been well prepared to assume their responsibilities. Prior to the start of camp counselors earn certification in CPR and First Aid, and undergo the Navy Youth Care Module Training, in areas of child development communication, nutrition, food handling and child endangerment and safety. If you missed out on the fun this year, next year is sure to be better than ever. For more information about other MYA programs, contact Jeff Dunn at 841-3293.

Ethics

political activity while on duty, in a Government office, or using a Government vehicle. A political campaign or election BEGINS when: - A candidate makes a formal announcement that he or she seeks to be elected to a federal, state, or local political office; An individual files a candidacy with the federal election commission or the equivalent state or local office. A political campaign ENDS one week after the conclusion of the relevant election. If there are any questions contact the NAVSTA Newport SJA and ethics counselor, Lt. Kevin Gerrity at (401) 841-2609.

Navy-wide news

Hawaii Sailor in Olympic race

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (NNS) — A Hawaii-based Sailor with Naval Reserve Center Honolulu is scheduled to compete in the Olympics in Athens tomorrow.

Yeoman Third Class Kelsey Nakanelua, representing American Samoa, a territory of the United States, will compete in the men's 100-meter dash in his second Olympic appearance. He also competed in the same event at the 2000 Sydney Olympics.

"I really didn't say anything coming in (about being an Olympic athlete)," he said. "Once the Navy found out, they were very, very supportive. I've met with my unit Commanding Officer and the chiefs and they've all said, 'What can we do?'"

We want to make sure you're okay."

"I'm very excited, I'm very proud," said Lt. Carmen Ehret, Honolulu Reserve Center executive officer. "I think it's a wonderful influence for our non-prior-service Sailors, having someone of Nakanelua's ability, because his athletic background emphasizes physical readiness, one of the very important aspects of the military."

Nakanelua, a 38-year-old single father, holds the state of Hawaii's record in the 100-meter dash at 10.59 seconds. He is also a five-time Hawaii's Fastest Man, winning the honor from 1995-1998 and again in 2001.

"It's an honor and privilege to represent the Navy, my culture and my family, Kamehameha Schools," he said.

Nakanelua is scheduled to attend boot camp in September at Recruit Training Command in Great Lakes, Ill. As a non-prior-service member, he is completing his third of four Naval Reserve indoctrination phases.

CNO puts focus on technology

ARLINGTON, Va. (NNS) — The Navy will employ revolutionary technology and training theories to better prepare Sailors for the opportunities and challenges of the new millennium, Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Vern Clark said during his Aug. 11 address to the Learning Strategies Consortium.

To help accelerate the Navy's Revolution in Training, Clark called for partnerships with the industrial, academic and government leaders as well as gaming, simulation, and education experts at the Naval Education and Training Command-sponsored consortium.

"Our asymmetric advantage is the partnership that we can create with you," Clark said. "I'm so pleased that we have members of industry and academia, learning experts from all over the place."

Because, ladies and gentlemen, we need your help to go as fast as we can and bring all the technology to bear because the clock is still ticking."

The gaming and simulation technology and learning theories the Navy is melding together will not only benefit the Sailors who learn from them, Clark added, but will also change the way other organizations view training in the future. "You are important to the United States Navy and fundamentally, I believe, for America," the CNO said.

To underscore the significance of the consortium, Clark outlined the evolution of the Revolution in Training from the Executive Review of Naval Training, to the creation of Task Force EXCEL to the establishment of the Human Performance Center.

"We're now at the point where we've got to deliver all the tools," the CNO said. "We've got to create them and deliver them."
